

FRANK CARR DIES AT HOME SUDDENLY

Was a Pioneer El Pason and
Had Been Chief of Police Here.

Frank Carr, an El Paso pioneer, and a man who has long been prominent in the public and business life of El Paso, died at his home, 515 Prospect avenue, at 10:45 on Friday night. Although he had not been well for some time, it was not thought that his sickness was serious, and his death was sudden.

During his vacation, which he took during April of this year, he met with a boat accident while in Detroit. He and a party had gone fishing and while out the boat was capsized. Mr. Carr was in the water for a long time, and since then, although he has not been confined to his bed, he has never regained his full health.

Frank Carr was born in Ripley, Ohio, in 1860, and came west in 1884. Two years later he located in El Paso and has been actively engaged here ever since. For several terms he was night captain of police and was, for a time, chief of police. From 1900 to 1902 he was county jailer under sheriff H. R. Hillebrand.

Retiring from the police force in 1902, he formed a partnership with J. E. Nagley and under the firm name of Nagley and Carr, engaged in the undertaking business. On October, 1905, he retired from the firm, and in November of the same year he became a partner in the undertaking firm of McBean and Simmons, the firm name being changed to McBean, Simmons and Carr. He was a member of this firm at the time of his death.

Mr. Carr had always been prominent in the various lodges and societies of the city and was a life member of the Elks, and a member of the Old Fellows, Eagles, Beavers and the Knights of Pythias.

He is survived by a widow, a daughter, Frances, and a son, Harry D. Carr. Mrs. Carr and her daughter, who are now in California, left for this city Saturday morning and will arrive here on Monday. Until their arrival no definite arrangements will be made in regard to the funeral.

It is announced, however, that all the societies to which he belonged will be represented.
