
Dead.

Johnny Davis, the well known hack man, who was recently stricken with paralysis, died this forenoon in the Ladies' Hospital in this city. Davis had been handling the reins for more than forty years, as driver of hack, express wagon, omnibus and mail coach. He drove the first express team for Wells, Fargo & Co., in San Francisco in 1852, and faced many a frightful snow storm crossing the Sierra Nevada mountains and the Washoe range in Nevada, and whether he had two or eight in hand he was always at home behind horses.
