Of a Pioneer Family.

Mrs. Fletcher was a member of a pioneer El Paso family and one of the city's best beloved daughters. She was a granddaughter of the late judge Joseph Magoffin, one of the first settlers and an early mayor of El Paso.

Endeared To Many.

Mrs. Fletcher's sunny disposition and sweetness of character had endeared her to many friends and she will always be remembered as one of the city's best beloved daughters.

Regardless of rank, station, creed or race, Mrs. Fletcher was kind to everybody with whom she came in contact and it has always been a well known fact that "Anne Magoffin was always the same" mattered not under what circumstances one met her. She was never too hurried to say something pleasant to her friends and somehow the day always seemed brighter when she passed one's way.
