

Mrs. J. G. McGrady, Former School Board Member, Dies

MRS. J. G. McGRADY, wife of attorney J. G. McGrady, died at her home, 4200 Hastings street, at 2 a. m. today following a stroke of paralysis.

Mrs. McGrady had been in poor health for three years. Prior to that she was prominent in club and civic affairs.

She was the first woman member of the El Paso school board and possibly the first woman school board member in Texas. She was appointed to serve the unexpired term of Roy Walker and ran for reelection as school trustee in 1919.

She was one of the leaders in war work in El Paso during the World war.

Funeral Saturday.

Funeral services probably will be held Saturday. Mrs. McGrady's two sons, Charles McGrady of Casper, Wyo., and Leroy McGrady of Bonham, Texas, are enroute here.

A brother, judge Leroy Smith, prominent lawyer of Fort Worth, is also enroute here for the funeral. Her husband is a member of the law firm of Lea, McGrady, Thomason & Edwards.

The McGrady's came here 15 years ago. They both came from Bonham, Texas, where they grew up together and were married. Mrs. McGrady first became ill while at Albuquerque three years ago.

Mrs. McGrady was an active member of the Christian church.
