

DEATH OF MRS. POLLARD.

The Deceased was a Universal Favorite in El Paso.

Yesterday morning C. E. Kelly received from his business partner, J. H. Pollard, now at Colorado Springs, a telegram reading as follows:

"Lena died at 10 o'clock this morning. Break the news to Mason best you can. Will bring the body there."

This message will fill many hearts in El Paso with sadness this morning.

Mrs. Lena Mason Pollard, the loveable young wife of Mr. J. H. Pollard was a general favorite in El Paso society circles. She was especially loved by the young people and was admired and petted by her old friends.

About a month ago Mrs. Pollard was in delicate health and Mr. Pollard took her to Colorado Springs hoping to win the bloom of health back to her pale cheeks. At the springs she contracted pneumonia from which she died yesterday morning.

The deceased was about twenty-six years of age and in addition to her devoted husband leaves a bright little son, Master Mason Pollard to mourn her untimely death. The deceased was a sister to Mrs. W. H. Austin, now with her husband in Kansas City and herself in very delicate health.

Mr. Pollard will arrive in El Paso with the remains tomorrow morning.
