

An Old-Timer Gone.

John H. Scott, one of the old-timers in this section, who has been located at Anthony on what has long been known as Scott's ranch for a quarter of a century, died at his residence yesterday morning at one o'clock and was buried yesterday afternoon. Scott was probably better known in this part of the country than most men, as in addition to his long residence, he was for a long time mail contractor between El Paso and Las Cruces, and ran a line of stages between the two points.
