

Obituary.

At a quarter after four this afternoon the Rev. J. W. Tays, breathed his last at his home, the pastoral residence of the Episcopal church. In the death of this distinguished divine, El Paso loses an old and honored citizen, and a gentleman whose heart and mind fitted him for the highest place among his fellow men. His admirers are many, his mourners more. The good parson was too well known at home and in this State to require further comment on the sad occurrence of to-day. Suffice it to say of the dear pastor who has left us for brighter shores.

"None knew thee, but to love thee
Nor named thee, but to praise."

TIMES 11-21-84