

READERS: I think to say a few words" of Bender. With no most other men on here, I'd like to say aral, well informed st thinker. It is a

Ann Carroll

and a relaxation to and OUR TOWN is best opportunities now fast he thinks interested he is in ing on. He does a commenting on the nival parade (al- didn't hear or see it I'm sure he was in er form.)

nder is articulate. best. Well, he's Ted d El Paso likes him ly because I've ANN CARROLL: written us from Je- hat he is receiving his letter you print- column.

Mrs. Joseph Raboff- ly Hills, Calif.

CHILDRED AND JOE: r to hear from Paul war. His complex on f Galilee where he wife plan to rent ounds level: L over

Heritage Group Eyes Officers

Nominations for officers of the El Paso Heritage Founda- tion, Inc., will be put to the vote before the members of the Mayor's El Paso Heritage Committee at its next meeting on Feb. 8.

During Yesterday's commit- tee meeting Mayor Fred Hervey, Charles Gaither, Sam Moore Jr., and Stephen Kent were named to a nominating committee to have a slate of officers ready for voting.

The Heritage Committee also passed a motion to drop members of the committee that miss four consecutive meetings without excuses.

Richard Newman showed the committee pictures of his own personal military arti- facts collection which he of- fered for inclusion in the Cavalry Museum.

The committee approved the Foundation's bylaws.

sensitive of the union, and Mike Arnold of the Human Development Resources In- stitute in Washington.

MARTINA, who recalled that he laid the tile floors for the Newspaper Printing Corp. remodeling a few years ago, first came to El Paso in 1945. He left briefly and returned for good in 1947.

"I was initiated into the union in Louisville, Ky," he recalled. "I belonged to sev- eral locals before coming here. I like El Paso — it is a very nice town."

New chemicals have made a difference in his trade, not- ed Martina. There is also machinery to help with some chores that used to be done by hand.

HE HAS had a hand in the building of many local struc- tures, including schools and buildings at University of Texas at El Paso and Ft. Bliss.

Martina retired a couple of years ago because of health problems, he said. He and his wife live at 1612 E. Rio Grande avenue. They have train) as a y

THE offeri es for ers ar Wyom R. Cro stive come ers. h Mar card r othera Jake teach

Five Sch

All Texas the sp Lions meeti at Mo 4675 Mr. Scots All Li invite

CAMPUS CLATTER with BIMO BURNS

A WORD OF CAUTION, BIMO, BEFORE WE GO

...LET'S NOT DEVELOP MY